"How to Beat Your Competition Through Innovation" Using the Techniques of Inventors and Innovators

All innovation starts with great ideas. You may be number one now, but if you're not innovating, your competition is, and they will knock you out of the lead. To stay ahead you need to constantly reinvent and have new ideas ready to go. Julie knows a thing or two about innovation. She's an inventor/innovator that turned $5.00 and a lump of clay into an international, NASDAQ winning product.

Julie is frequently featured in publications like The Wall Street Journal, Inventor's Digest, CBS Money Watch, Newsday and the International Business Times as an innovation expert.

Your attendees will learn:

- * How and why you need to generate new ideas
- * How to become number one in your market and stay there
- * Why you need to incorporate "play" into your office space
- * How to encourage your employees to want to innovate

Your employees will be excited about creating, and will come back with hands-on knowledge they can use to solve problems, create new products & services, and learn new ways of doing business that will boost your company's bottom line.
